THE FIRST RAIN IN SIX MONTHS

Fell this Morning. The Farmers Will Commence Seeding at Once.

This forenoon brought the first rain of 1917 in a heavy downpour that left the air pure and cool. Despite the unseasonable heavy fall snow which began on Nov. 1st, with the exception of some snow in the early part of that month, there has been no sign of rain since that date in this portion of Alberta.

Today's rain should mark the commencement of farming operations earnest in this part of the province. The season undoubtedly has been one of the latest on record but farmers anticipate no trouble and many predict record crops as the result of the heavy snowfall during the winter.

A prominent farmer speaking of the crop prospects for the year is authority for the statement that the present spring is the latest in the history of this country for twenty-five years. Some seasons the spring has been as late as the land till May, but never has the snow remained as long as this spring. However, it is practically all gone. This, however, does not mean that the spring is late. It is expected that it will have an enormous effect on the crop. "For this time of the year, it is quite a relief. There is no room for alarm over the tardy appearance of spring."

CROP DAMAGE IS EXAGGERATED

In the U. S. Says Secretary of Agriculture. He Doesn't Know About Canada.

Chicago, May 6.—Reports of damage to crops which have been so numerous of late owing to the unseasonable weather and the ravages of bugs, have been greatly exaggerated and for a purpose, according to James Wilson, secretary of agriculture, who said today: "Spring seeding is well advanced now and the cold weather that has been so much talked of has not done any harm to the crops. The reports of damage to the winter wheat have been greatly exaggerated."

TO RESTRICT CHILD LABOR

The bill also provides that no child under the age of 16 shall be employed in any factory or workshop. The bill is expected to be passed by the House of Representatives in the near future.

WINNIPEG'S AGREEMENT.

Will Probably Total $100,000. Fire Insurance to Advance.

Winnipeg, Man., May 6.—J. W. Brown, city assessor, today announced that the city's fire insurance rates will be raised in the near future. The increase in the number of buildings and the value of the land has kept pace with the growth in population very closely. With a real estate value of $100,000,000 the total assessed value in the city is $100,000,000. It is expected that the advance will be one per cent.

REASON THE FUR CATCH IS SMALL

Joseph Lacombe, of Peace River, Explains That Rabbits Died Off This Year.

Joseph Lacombe, the well known fur trader of the Peace River, arrived in this city today and explained the reason for the small fur catch in the Peace River. He said that the rabbits, which are the main source of fur, died off this year. He said that the rabbits died off because of the weather. He said that the rabbits died off because of the weather.

THE WEST IS SAVED FROM SERIOUS COAL FAMINE BY THE SIGNING OF A TWO YEAR AGREEMENT BETWEEN MINERS AND OPERATORS—MINERS RETURN TO WORK—THE CONCILIATION BOARD EXERTED A STRONG MORAL INFLUENCE IN THE SETTLEMENT OF THE DIFFERENCES—SIR WM. MULOCK'S ADDRESS AT A PUBLIC MEETING.

NEW INDUSTRIAL MEASURE WORKED WONDERS

That there will not be a protracted strike in the coal mines of Alberta and British Columbia, and that a two-year agreement has been reached which both operators and miners have endorsed, is significant of the effectiveness of the new Industrial Disputes Act, passed during the recent session of the Federal Parliament.

The manner in which this act has done its work is considered to be equally as great a victory as was conceded to it in the settlement of the Nova Scotia coal strike.

The act was not actually applied, but the fact that the government stood ready to put its provisions into operation was undoubtedly a large factor in the satisfactory disposition of the difficulties which confronted the parties to the dispute.

The sagacious and energetic manner in which Deputy Minister of Labor Mackenzie King worked for a settlement is a subject for congratulation of the Federal Government in commissioning so efficient an official to lend his services to the disputants in securing an amicable settlement.

Another factor in the settlement is the fact that Hon. W. H. Cushing minister of public works for Alberta, proclaimed the introduction of a bill into the legislature at its next session providing for an eight-hour day, bank to bank.

It is by no means certain that the West will not feel the effect of the several weeks' cessation of mining operations, but that there will not be a serious coal famine is practically assured. And this is the case may be placed to the credit largely of the new Industrial Disputes Act and the Alberta Government.

From Our Own Man.

Fernie, May 6.—From all appearances everything is now satisfactory. Settled and some of the men will return to work tomorrow morning. Notices have been posted all over town reading as follows:

EMPEROR WILLIAM FEAR ANOTHER BEING ISOLATED FUEL FAMINE

France and Japan Negotiating for Mutual Protection. Germany many not in Treaties.

Associated Press Dispatch.

Paris, May 6.—Official confirmation has been obtained by the Associated Press of the report that negotiations are in progress between France and Japan looking to an understanding mutually guaranteeing the political and commercial interests of the two powers in the Far East. The conference on the subject has been going on in Tokyo and is proceeding harmoniously, but some time will probably elapse before they are concluded. France has recognized that her possessions in Indo-China and Siam would be vulnerable in the event of war, and deemed it as wise to conclude an arrangement with Japan which is to guarantee French interests in return for the recognition of the Japanese claims in Korea and Formosa. At the same time, it is explained, the entente will be strictly limited to the maintenance of "status quo." It does not touch "honor" and has nothing resembling "offensive or defensive treaty." Nevertheless taken in connection with the Russo-Japanese understanding, which shortly will be concluded, and the Anglo-Russian understanding, both of which are supplementary to Anglo-Japanese and Franco-Russian advances and the Anglo-French, the entente creates a combination in the Far East and a new grouping of the powers in Europe of extreme significance. It constitutes, therefore, a signal evidence of the success of Great Britain's diplomatic maneuvering for the isolation of Germany.

DREDGING CONTRACTS.

Hill and Harriman Roads Urge Coal Dealers to Lay in Supply During Summer.

Chicago, May 6, 1907.—The traffic between the depots of the Harriman and the Hill lines has been in a strenuous effort to prevent occurrence of a coal famine next winter in the west and the northwest. Orders have been issued by the highest officials of the various roads, and have the sanction of K. H. Harriman, and James J. Hill, requiring all of the officials to make every effort to induce the coal dealers to lay in their winter's supply in the summer months. The officials of the railroads dread another such famine as occurred last winter, when they were blamed for the suffering and destitution which reigned in the west and northwest many weeks.

At that time the interstate commerce commission took the problem in hand and issued orders which required the Hill roads to discontinue all other traffic until they succeeded in getting coal to the suffering people along their lines. This proved an extensive operation, and the railroads do not want a recurrence.

MAKE A PERSONAL CANVAS.
Accordingly a personal canvas is being made in all the cities and coal dealers are better urged personally to co-operate with the railroads in placing the winter country beyond the possibility of another coal famine.

offered the dealers and inducement to the efforts are meeting with success. It is the purpose of the railroads to either get the West and Northwest adequately supplied during the warm months or to place the coal in the hands of the dealers who they say it rightfully belongs—with them at the time of the winter's supply.

Rev. H. Parry was engaged as manager of the Willard house, which will be opened on Friday of this week to entertain the travelling public. This large hotel will be conducted as a strictly first class temperance house.

THE PREMIER AT THE GUILD HALL

"A Memorable Speech, Which will Find a Place in History" Says London Paper.

The London Tribune thus reports Sir Wilfrid Laurier's speech at the banquet in the Guildhall on April 26 to the colonial premiers:

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, on rising to reply, was received with loud and prolonged cheering. Having referred to the hospitality of the city, and to some of the historic gatherings within the Guildhall, he said the countries which the premiers represented were those young daughter nations of England who, in all parts of the surface of the earth, maintained those British institutions which, wherever applied, were synonymous with law, order, and liberty, and who in the proud experience of their childhood proclaimed their affection for and attachment to the British crown. (Cheers.) They had sent their delegates to the conference with the government of Great Britain upon questions, problems and topics affecting their own welfare, the welfare of British herself, and the welfare of the British empire.

Having referred to the powerful personality of the late Mr. Seddon, Sir Wilfrid remarked that since he had been in this country he had learnt of the great importance which was attached to the conference now being held. On the one hand, high expectations were entertained of the results of its deliberation, and on the other hand there was a dread lest it might be held in vain.

"Failure," he continued, "there shall not be. Failure there will not be. (Loud cheers.) There will not be any such word as failure in connection with the conference of 1907." (Hear, hear.) He did not mean to say that the hopes were to be realised of those ardent enthusiastic imperialists who, remembering the uncertainty of all human calculations, would endeavor to bind the future, perhaps, by putting upon the present intolerable conditions. He meant to say that the conference of this year 1907 would demonstrate to the world and to ourselves that the British empire was a definite entity. (Cheers.)

The conference would separate the practical from the sentimental. It would show what was possible and show what could be done, and more important yet, in his humble judgment, it would show what was to be avoided. It was perhaps idle to discuss whether the conference should be a success or a failure; its very composition implied its success. At this moment the attention of the civilized world was riveted upon England. The student, the publicist, the historian, and the philosopher in France and Germany and other parts of the continent of Europe who studied the empire of today in England, were forced to admit that this conference presented a spectacle that was unique. He might search and search in vain in the pages of history to find a precedent or a parallel. Had he not? He saw young countries and colonies, some of them nations, not coming here with any thought of separation, but coming here only with thoughts of union and harmony. (Hear, hear.) They were not there with a remembrance as were the American colonies years ago, but simply to discuss what was the best for the whole empire, and what means could be taken to render the relations between the mother country and the colonies as possible more intimate than at the present time. In the presence of such a spectacle who could ask the question, said Sir Wilfrid, "whether the conference shall be a success or a failure? Its success is assured."

They had only to look round them in that gathering to see Dr. Jameson and Mr. Bells sitting at the same table to have an answer as to whether the conference would be a success. His friend Dr. Jameson, and his friend General Bells would have told him if he said that the relations between them were not always as cordial as the relations, say, between Colborne and Bright. (Cheers.) They would agree with him that relations at one time were somewhat strained who would have thought five years ago that two members of this conference would be Dr. Jameson and General Bells, one as prime minister of the Cape Colony and the other as prime minister of the Transvaal. Strong pressure was put on the British Government to suspend the granting of the constitution to the Transvaal. They would not listen. They did not hesitate four years after the war to give the full citizenship of the British Empire to the colony of the Transvaal. (Cheers.) He ventured to say that there was only one nation in the world who could have dared to do what Great Britain had done, and that nation was England. (Cheers.) The wisdom of that policy had been vindicated every year since then when the British government did not hesitate to give to French Canada the same power and the privileges now given to South Africa. If anything were needed to justify that wisdom it might be found in the words which were spoken to hear the previous day from his friend Dr. Jameson, that now he had a united South Africa represented; that they might have a federation composed of the Transvaal, Cape Colony, the Orange River Colony, Natal and Rhodesia. (Cheers.) This was a truly imperial policy, and so long as the British power was maintained upon those lines he ventured to assert that it rested upon foundations firmer than the rock and endurable as the ages. (Loud cheers.)

Warm Approval of the Speech. The Tribune's enthusiastic terms as "a memorable speech that will certainly find a place in future histories of the British Empire." In the course of its comments it says:

"The conference, then, will be invaluable, as Sir Wilfrid Laurier intimated at the Guildhall, not merely for such immediate concrete results as it will achieve, but, above all, for the immense educational effect of the discussion of the larger issues, and the practical guidance that discussion will supply towards the gradual process of systematizing the imperial partnership. But that is by no means all that Sir Wilfrid Laurier means by denying the possibility of failure to the conference. It is a success already, he points out, by its very composition. The presence of Dr. Jameson and General Bells, enemies until shortly before the last conference met, but now seated side by side as fellow premiers, and looking forward alike to a federated British South Africa, has impressed the outside world with the daring of Great Britain's imperial policy, as nothing else could have done. And now we have from the French-Canadian premier, who is himself an embodiment of that bold policy's triumphant results, an enthusiastic and authoritative tribute to its wisdom. Sir Wilfrid Laurier alluded expressly to the strong pressure that had been put upon the Liberal government to suspend the granting of self-government to the Transvaal, and eloquently applauded their refusal to yield to it. Perhaps some who have been asserting that the conference was destined to failure, and who only a little while ago were denouncing the 'true imperial policy' that has brought General Bells to London, may do well to contrast in imagination Sir Wilfrid Laurier's eulogy of the Liberal government's wisdom with the policy which he said that he would have had to preserve if their own policy had prevailed. It is a useful reminder of the fallibility of those at home who are fond of posing as self-constituted spokesmen of the Britons beyond the seas. But it is enough to recognize that it is a success already, he points out, by its very composition. The presence of Dr. Jameson and General Bells, enemies until shortly before the last conference met, but now seated side by side as fellow premiers, and looking forward alike to a federated British South Africa, has impressed the outside world with the daring of Great Britain's imperial policy, as nothing else could have done. And now we have from the French-Canadian premier, who is himself an embodiment of that bold policy's triumphant results, an enthusiastic and authoritative tribute to its wisdom. Sir Wilfrid Laurier alluded expressly to the strong pressure that had been put upon the Liberal government to suspend the granting of self-

LONGSHOREMEN'S STRIKE.
Assuming Serious Aspect And May Tie Up Passenger Lines.
Associated Press Despatch.
New York, May 6.—The strike of Longshoremen which has been in progress for more than a week, affecting not only the coastwise steamers but several transatlantic lines, took an extremely serious turn to-day when the men employed on five or more of the trans-Atlantic steamers joined the movement. The men joined the strikers to-day numbered between four and five thousand, and their action may result in serious delay in movement of some of the biggest lines across the Atlantic line passenger steamers. They were employees of the North German Lloyd, Scandinavian-American, Hamburg-American, Holland American, and Phoenix lines. Some of the Hamburg-American men consented to resume work temporarily but with the understanding that unless their demands are granted before to-morrow they will quit.

WIDOW GETS ONLY $5,000,000

"Silent" Smith's Will Bequeaths
$20,000,000 to Sister,
Lady George Cooper.

New York, May 6.—Complications which developed today in the matter of the estate of James Henry Smith indicate that one of the great will contests the United States has ever known is imminent.

Two wills are reported to be in existence. One is what is known as the London will, which is believed to be in the keeping of Lord and Lady George Cooper. The other, and is alleged later will, is declared to be in the possession of Mrs. James Henry Smith, formerly Mrs. Rhineclander Stewart, with whom the multi-millionaire was on his honeymoon trip when he died suddenly in Japan a few weeks ago.

The London will is of such a nature that the Smith relatives are satisfied and will not contest. The terms of this will are not of the kind that the widow would approve. On the other hand, the will which she is reported to have, makes ample provision for her, but would not satisfy the relatives, and is sure to provoke a contest from them.

Twenty million to Sister.

The latest papers are able to give authoritatively the first details of the London will, leaving a fortune estimated at $75,000,000. By the provisions, his bride, the former Mrs. Rhineclander Stewart, will receive $20,000,000, or an enormous income for life. James Henry Smith's favorite sister, Lady Cooper, is willed about $20,000,000. The remainder of the estate, after certain large annuities have been paid, will go to "Silent" Smith's relatives—brothers and sisters, and their survivors. It is not that favoritism is shown in the case of those who bear the Smith name.

If this will proves to be the last drawn by Smith, there will be no contest for the enormous fortune which he inherited from his uncle, and which he almost doubled by fortunate speculations in sure railroad stocks and bonds.

This will is supposed to have been drawn in London just after his marriage to Mrs. Rhineclander Stewart. He is said to have heard stories that Mrs. Stewart was marrying him for his money, and to have willed an enormous fortune to her, leaving her the scant five million out of his enormous fortune.

HAYWOOD FACES ACTUAL CHARGE

Of Murdering Governor Steunenberg, of Idaho. State Will Argue Conspiracy.

Boise Idaho, May 6.—The application for a bill of particulars filed by counsel for the defense in the case of William H. Haywood, ex-governor and treasurer of the Western Federation of Miners, who on Thursday met will be placed on trial charged with the murder of former Governor Steunenberg, of Chicago, represented the defendants. The arguments for the state will be presented by Senator W. E. Borah and C. M. Vandervoort, public prosecutor. Senator Borah has been retained as special counsel in the case for the state to assist James H. Hawley, leading counsel.

Has Peculiar Features.

Associated Press Dispatch.

Counsel on both sides admit that the application is not likely to effect any materially, a bill of particulars in a case of murder is somewhat unusual, but as this case presents peculiar features, counsel for the prosecution express the opinion that they should compel their record by the course they have taken. Haywood is charged with the actual murder of Steunenberg. It is admitted by the prosecution that Haywood was not in the state of Idaho at the time the murder was committed but the claim of the state is that Haywood conspired with the actual execution of the crime and therefore he is guilty of the crime. The purpose of the application is to force the state to show in advance of the announcement of the trial in what the manner the prosecution expects to link Haywood with the murder. This would evidently mean the exposure of the evidence in the hands of the state and the action will be vigorously opposed by the state's attorney.

From One Day To The Other

THE DESERTED NEST.

Deserted nest, that on the leafless tree
Waves to and fro with every dreary blast.
With none to shelter, none to care for Then,
The day of pride and cheerfulness is past.

But yet, deserted nest, there is a spell
Even in thy loneliness to touch the soul.
For holy things within thee once did dwell.
The type of joys departed now thou art.

Then though thy walls be rent, and
And thoughtless crowds may hourly pass thee by,
Where love and truth and tenderness did dwell,
There still attraction for the poet's eye.
—Joseph Howe.

GENERAL BOTHA'S WIFE.

London illustrated papers have lately shown a number of portraits of General Botha, premier of the Transvaal.

In and out of pictures she is said to be a particularly graceful, animated woman, with dignified bearing and warmth of manner. The notes of her ancestry, read in the latest English papers, indeed, have unusual interest.

For her mother, the wife of General Botha, the Boer leader, who is now occupying the centre of the stage of the colonial premier in London, was a Miss Emmett, grand-daughter of the famous Irishman, Robert Emmett, who died in the cause of his country in 1803, at the early age of twenty-five.

What a curious combination of circumstances it is that the niece of a man who tried to free his country from English rule and a man who fought valiantly against the same dominion should have married, and still more curious that the children of this union will in all probability grow up with Irishmen the world over.

This recalls the story of Robert Emmett, the fearless young lover and patriot, who is still a national hero, and accomplished ally of the lovely and romantic Irish girl, who married him, and who was executed for his part in the rebellion of 1803.

In July, 1803, he was the ring-leader in the clash of arms in which Lord Kilwarden and several others perished. He was arrested shortly afterwards and sentenced to be hanged. The time he was very much in love with Miss Sarah Curran, a beautiful girl, daughter of the celebrated barrister of that name, and if he had not lingered with his lady-love he would probably have escaped.

The poet Moore has immortalized Sarah Curran and Robert Emmett in that pretty poem beginning, "She is far from the land where her young hero lies."

More song of her with delicate grace, of the woman turned from her father's home because of her attachment to Emmett, an object of pathos to friends in London and Dublin, who insisted upon endeavors to rouse her interest again.

She found rest a few years later in death. That Mrs. Botha should be of the Emmett family, and recall this historical incident now in her own person is but another of the many interesting details of the conference in London now.

ANOTHER STORY OF WHISTLER.
John G. Saxe, the poet, and Oliver Wendell Holmes were talking about brain fever. "I once had a severe attack of brain fever myself," "How could you have brain fever?" asked Dr. Holmes, smiling. "It is only strong brains that have brain fever." "How did you find that out?" asked Saxe.

In London: "Do you think, Mr. Whistler, that genius is hereditary?" "I can't tell you, my dear Whistler, except: 'Heaven has granted me no relief.'"

ROMANTIC EXPERIENCE OF BOY VICTIM.
According to an English paper of April 13, the latest sensation in the London musical world is another boy victim named Leopold Lustig. This is not, however, the first time the lad has been heard in London, for his youthful career contains its own interest with a little local color in it.

Mr. Sidney W. Morris, of Alberta

College, was the first to introduce this young sensation to the London public at one of his vocal recitals at Birmingham hall in 1908. At this recital Mr. Morris was assisted by Mr. Harry Ernest Hoffmann, of the Royal Academy of Music, and at one of his recitals Hoffmann announced that a boy violinist of nine years of age had been brought to him, and begged Mr. Morris to give the lad a hearing. Mr. Morris was so delighted with the child's rendering of one of Debussy's most difficult sonatas that he immediately engaged him for the recital, and also for another concert a week later. Lustig's feature playing of some most difficult music within the space of an hour, brought the whole audience to a state of enthusiasm, and the critics sang his praises everywhere. When the next concert came off, however, Hoffmann announced that Lustig had disappeared. The agents looked for him all over London, but without success, and nothing has been heard of him till a month or so ago, when he was announced to play in London once more.

It appears that after his initial success, he was immediately strangled by the London public. Lustig's feature playing of some most difficult music within the space of an hour, brought the whole audience to a state of enthusiasm, and the critics sang his praises everywhere. When the next concert came off, however, Hoffmann announced that Lustig had disappeared. The agents looked for him all over London, but without success, and nothing has been heard of him till a month or so ago, when he was announced to play in London once more.

WEDDING AT MEDICINE HAT.
The marriage of Miss Berta Marquette, daughter of Mr. D. Marquette, of Medicine Hat, and Mr. Harry Newman, of Fort William, and son of W. W. Newman, of Medicine Hat, took place at Medicine Hat last week. Rev. E. C. Cheyne, B.A., the bride's pastor, officiating, assisted by Rev. J. Robinson, her cousin. The choir of the church, composed of the bride's friends, was in a beautiful robe of white and silver, and the bride had over children and liberty bells.

She carried a shower bouquet of bride roses, lilies of the valley and maidenhair fern, and wore the groom's gift of a diamond ring. Mrs. Ralph B. Plaxton, as matron honor, looked charming in a beautiful gown of red and white satin over tulle.

Mr. and Mrs. Newman left after the ceremony on a honeymoon trip to the coast, and on their return will reside at Fort William.

SOCIAL.
Mrs. Saunders is the hostess at a large tea this afternoon.

The San Carlos Opera company, with Madame Nordica and other noted singers in the company, arrived in Ottawa after the season closed, and came as a finale to "the season" of 1907.

Japan as a honeymoon land is somewhat novel, but very appropriate; and now that the fashion has been set may become popular with Canadians. It was chosen by Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Grigg, who were married last week in Montreal, was a very brilliant affair. The bride was Miss Beatrice May, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank May, and grand-daughter of the late Hon. and Mrs. Matthew Vankoughnet, of Toronto.

The groom was Mr. Allen Grigg, of London, England, son of Mr. Henry Tully Grigg. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Arthur Wood, assisted by Rev. Arthur French. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Elsa May, Miss Maud Baker, Miss Emma Macdonald, and two little girls, Miss Gwen Allan and Miss Anna Allan.

She was clerked away by her father, Mr. Frank May, and Mr. Angus Fraser, assisted by Mr. J. W. Fraser, being Mr. Jack Riddell, Mr. Willie Redpath and Mr. Humble. After the reception the young couple left by train for Vancouver, en route to Japan, where they will spend their honeymoon before taking up their residence in London.

A Great Victory for the New Industrial Disputes' Act

whole situation is now relieved, and in a few days Fernie will again resume its normal condition, although it may take a week or so to get all the men back at the working level. At least Alberta and British Columbia will be free from coal mining strikes.

King's Great Diplomacy.
That this is due to the unparagoned and indefatigable efforts of Mr. King, in his official capacity as the Deputy Minister of Labor, is agreed by all concerned, and the respect he has gained from the miners should do much to assist him in reaching a settlement the next time his services are required.

THE EFFECTIVENESS OF THE LABOR DISPUTES' ACT.
Sir William Mulock's splendid address at Final Meeting of Conciliation Board.

This afternoon the final meeting of the Conciliation Board was held in the drawing room of the Fernie hotel. It was a public meeting, and the members of the press were admitted. Sir Wm. Mulock presided, being supported by Messrs. Eccles, Parker and Smith. Others present included Deputy Minister of Labor, Mackenzie King, L. Stockett, representing the Western Coal Operators' Association, G. D. Grant, general manager of the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Company, Limited, F. H. Sherman, president of District No. 18 of the I. M. W. of A., Macdonald, secretary, F. Patterson, Sullivan, Graham and Laidlaw.

After the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting, Mr. Stockett informed the board that it would not be necessary to enter upon the laborers, and thanked Sir Wm. Mulock for his response to their coming such a long distance to settle the dispute. He read a statement describing the culmination of recent negotiations.

President Sherman joined in thanks to the board and said that they were very pleased to have Mr. Stockett inform them of the progress of the settlement of this kind they could have a board constituted as they were for the settlement of the dispute.

Sir William Mulock's Speech.
Sir Wm. Mulock said in speaking to the members of the board:
"I presume that in our laboring with this matter we have organized formally under the act, though not appearing necessary to do so. If we are to proceed with the inquiry we should have been expected to take such of office and proceed in the usual way."
"We thought it better that we should meet informally. We learned that the parties themselves, aided by Mackenzie King, were negotiating a settlement and we on our part decided to defer formally in hope that the happy result which today has been achieved might be reached by the parties themselves."

Wise Action of Both Parties.
"You have done most wisely in coming together and adjusting your differences in this way. It is true that the board took no part in this matter. It was not necessary to have done, because the fact that the board was within the reach of both parties seems to have suggested that the wisdom of their taking assistance of the board to do what they themselves could better do if they were so disposed."
"Sometimes parties to trade disputes are so feelingly disposed that reason for the moment and foolish things and unwise words are done and uttered."

Trade Disputes to Be Treated Philosophically.
"Whereas these trade disputes ought to be regarded as incidental to business affairs, as a discussion takes place between the buyer and seller of any article of commerce, the buyer wishing to purchase at the best price, the purchaser wishing to pay at the cheapest price. The working man has his labor to sell; the employer has it to buy, and it is to some extent natural that each should desire to make the best bargain in the disposition of this article of commerce."

Unwise Methods in the Past.
"But in the past there has been an unnecessary disregard of common sense and principle, and in the adjustment of these disputes the employers and employees have treated each other often as if they were hostile forces. This has resulted in a waste of time and money resulting in mutual exhaustion, until at last the contestants have come to the verge of conscience and reason and attain the end that ought to have been attained at the beginning without the intervention of any warlike acts."

Effect of New Statute.
"There is now on the statute book a statute which renders it impossible for lockout or cessation of work pending a dispute wholly unnecessary, and where hereafter such a contention is brought about, so long as this act is upon the statute it is a wanton misuse of liberty. There is no longer a necessity for an employer to lock out his men in any of the classes of industry to which this act applies. There is no necessity for any of men engaged in the business to which this act applies, either to go upon strike or cease work, at least until the board has been created and made to enquire which parliament has authorized to do so."

The Act Quite Adequate.
I believe if this act had been clearly and fully understood before the cessation of operations in these mines the cessation would never have taken place. The work of conciliation and arrangement that has been so successfully brought to an end could well have been carried on with the mine in full operation. The consequences to the public in the cessation of mining is a country like this, the most serious and far-reaching. The public interest demands that hereafter no such course as untowardly look place should occur again in the event of any misunderstanding between the employees and employers.
Either Party To Dispute May Move.
"Any party now ash, through his machinery of this act being about negotiations and it is in the power of either party to refuse to negotiate unless they wish to abandon their functions to the discretion of the board. But either through the board or actual negotiations between the parties all such disputes as have been in question now can hereafter be disposed of without the slightest loss to the employers or the employees without any injury to the public interests."

Liberty Action of Board.
No doubt any board engaged in the settling of disputes such as the one in question—even if work were continued in the meantime—would take that fact into consideration in its judgment and would make the terms of settlement reciprocal to recover the time that might elapse during a settlement and whilst the work was going on. Therefore with that possibility in view nothing would be gained by either party in dragging out negotiations they would gain nothing by the time consumed and arguments.

Neither Party to Gain by Delaying.
"I mentioned that, in case it might be thought that any party would be gaining by delaying a final settlement. Any wise board would take that circumstance into consideration and make its terms retroactive if it was thought equitable that such should be the case. I have had the honor of receiving many suggestions from both sides in connection with this dispute, and as to the manner in which the case should be handled, I have been carried on."

Suggestive of Settlement in System.
"I have no personal knowledge of the subject, and perhaps the observation I am about to make may be a crude one, but nevertheless with all respect to the management of the mines it might be possible—at least I hope so—to employ a better working system that may be of service to themselves and to the public. The interest of the employees and employers are not in conflict, they are in a limited partnership, and it is impossible for one to be unjust without the other being injured."

Hand-to-Mouth Methods.
"Now it has been known in many occasions that operations in these mines have been interrupted because there are no cars to carry the coal. One miner told me that in one month in one mine the coal several days' work out of a possible twenty-day because of there being no cars to ship the coal, and their company having no facilities for storing coal as a mine manager, they have been depending on cars to load coal at once. It occurred to me that this is a rather unwise method of carrying on such an important industry, and that the practice adopted at other great mining centers might be a better one. I have been having storage facilities, namely, to bring over interruptions such as have been experienced in the lack of transportation or other obstruction to business."

Miners Require More Healthful Recreation.
"It is natural that men engaged in manual labor should desire to have a holiday during the pleasant season of the year. Their calling is laborious and hazardous, and it would be to the interest of the men and also the employers that the employees should from time to time have a reasonable relaxation from their labor in the open air, where their health would be restored and their system toned up. They are then in a better spirit and in a better condition to carry on their work."

Fragmentary Holidays No Good.
"Forced holidays in a fragmentary way here and a day there during the working season, while enabling a working man to take a solid holiday, and I would be to shut him out from work for the day. I can imagine that the only reason in this case would be to keep him waiting for work to resume; perhaps going to the tavern or to some place somewhere and getting into a discomfited condition."

Regular Holidays Better for Men.
"On the other hand continuous work throughout the year, while a man wishes to work and then taking his broken time as one holiday, he has no time to rest and to recuperate, and as in the other case wasting his substance. This last is often the case when persons have to wait about in a small town like this, with three or four thousand people, and no amusements, and any interests, and nothing to occupy time."
Employers Might Help Men to Secure Homes.

"It occurs to me that the company might in another way also be of great service to the men. Rents here are doubtless high, and it would be to the advantage of the company to cooperate with the employees towards bringing about a method that would enable the employees to acquire homes of their own, then the men have a stake in the company, and are interested in the welfare of the town and in the preservation of their property and accumulation of property."

Shared Sense of Responsibility.
"They would feel that they are not a mere floating population, but that they had an interest in the stability of everything in the vicinity. Moreover, if a small quantity of land say, a quarter of an acre for example, could be attached to each home, then during the summer season there would be an opportunity for the miner when he left his occupation to indulge in the healthful, useful and profitable business of attending to a garden where, by his wife and children could meet in common interest."

"Then there would be some home life for their instead as is very often the case in a mining district—the miner going from the mine, taking his evening meal, then resorting to a hotel or the town away from his family."

Operators Could Do No Greater Service.
"I do not think the operators could do anything more to help the miners."

do anything that would be of greater service to their fellowmen and at the same time be an advantage to themselves, than to endeavor to bring about a condition of affairs that would enable the employees ultimately to become owners of their homes.

No Place Like Home.
"It would cost them less than having to pay high rents; they would not be at the mercy of landlords liable to be moved out of the rented house in short notice; they would feel they were anchored in the country, and however humble the home might be there is no place like home."

Praise for Both Parties to Agreement.
"I have been very much gratified at the intelligent spirit that has been brought to bear by the operators and employees in connection with this question. There has been a great advance made in the settlement of disputes, a great stimulus has been given to the settlement of disputes by the conduct of the parties to this case. They met in a amiable way with determination, evidently to make concessions."

Compromises Always Necessary.
"It is impossible that all the demands on each side could ever be granted. Every question of importance in life that requires the concurrence of many minds is the outcome of compromise. A public question of importance on which people will unite has to be the result of an interchange of thought, of the adjusting of opposing and conflicting views; so in trade disputes there must be a mutual concession if there is to be any compromise accomplished."

An Object-Lesson to All Canada.
"I have no mature views to offer you. These are merely thoughts that are uppermost in my mind. I have the satisfaction of knowing that you have not only well guarded your own interests, but you have set an example which will bear fruit in the solution of this most difficult problem which, I think, is Canada's present problem."

Compulsory Arbitration Not Ideal.
The parties to this dispute have set an object lesson to all the people of Canada that when reason and a regard for justice are difficult to be attained, it is better to have a third party to settle the dispute."

"In some countries—in New Zealand, for instance—there is a law that land, for instance—there is a law that any party to a dispute must accept arbitration and its enforcement is compulsory. This has been followed in some of the new countries, but I am not sure that it is a wise thing to do. I have been thinking of the way in which I have been treated by my colleagues, and for them and myself I think you all for the course you have taken in bringing such a happy termination to this important question."

The meeting then broke up, marking the closing of the dispute.

"Short Time" Causes Trouble.
Mr. Eckstein paid a high compliment to Mr. King, and attributed much of the success to his agency and Mr. Parker, in the course of some general complimentary remarks touched upon one point which was thought often had much to do with the grievance of the men. This was in the working of short time. He mentioned one case where all trouble disappeared when his men obtained full time.

The gathering then dissolved amid a round of hand-shaking and well-wishing.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

Rapid Expansion of Loans Causes Doubt—Paris Bidding for London Market—Wheat Market Strong.

New York, May 6.—The indecisive line of speculative sentiment in the stock market today was reflected in the irregular fluctuations of prices. An attempt was made to advance prices, but it met with such poor response that it was abandoned. Evidently the reports of the poor crop conditions were on the market, and leave small influence to enter upon large commitments until actual conditions are better understood. Union Pacific was an important sympathetic factor in the whole market. That stock was unfavorably affected by reports of new steps intended in the government activities against the Harman combination of railroads. Further measures in the government's prosecution of the Standard Oil Company were expected to be at hand. The bank statement came in for some unfavorable discussion, owing to the rapid rate of loan expansion which has been going on for several weeks past. Lenders of money, while never declining rates for short term loans, show their feeling of doubt over the call money markets by their disposition to make loans for their period carrying over that season. The keenness of the Paris competition for gold in the London market, and the harder tone of the discount market in Paris today, were the features in the international exchange. Copper reacted in London today. Reports of excited buying of iron helped to hold the United States steel stocks comparatively firm. Last prices were near the lowest of the day. Bonds were irregular. Total sales par value $1,474,000.

New York, May 6.—Wheat receipts, 300,000; exports, 8,275; sales, 3,200,000.

The jump was explained by heavy covering impelled by some of the worst crop harvests has yet appeared, reflecting the backward season. Final prices were 1 3/4 cent higher, and a little under top for the day. May, 91 5/4 to 92 1/4, closed 92 1/4; July, 91 1/4 to 92 1/4, closed 92 1/4; Sept., 91 1/4 to 92, closed 92 1/4; Dec., 90 1/4 to 92 1/4, closed 92 1/4.

The Prince of Wales and other members of the royal family, Premier Campbell-Bannerman, the cabinet ministers and the army and navy officers of high rank greeted the Japanese prince. Then followed a brilliant state procession, what is known as "sovereign's escort" of troops, through cheering crowds, to the Buckingham palace, where Prince Fushimi had an audience lasting half an hour with King Edward. The Prince afterwards proceeded in state to York House, where he will reside during his stay. The prince was accompanied by Admiral Yamamoto, ex-minister of the navy and a distinguished sailor.
